Office: Nos. 25 and 27 Fourteenth Street WE had a call yesterday from Mr. R. Mc-Morton, an intelligent farmer who lives near Holliday's Cove, in Brooke county, and who imforms us that he has lost six cattle from the Alabama disease, or splenic fever. He has a number of the Alabama cattle on his place, which he purchased last spring, all of them in good condition except one and that one convalescent from a slight manifestation of disease. The cattle lost are all natives of this region. Ten of them were sick and, as we said, six have died. Drs. Shriver, Cooper and Curtis made a post mortem examination of one of he cattle, and pronounced the disease plenic fever. The apparently strange ciramstance is that the cattle brought from labama, while they appear to be the anse of the disease, show very little of it mong themselves, and do not take it from the other cattle, but on the contrary are

The scene reminded me so forice bly of Wolfe's "Burial of Sir John Moore" bly of Wolfe's "Burial of Sir John Moore" that, although I had not thought of it for years, every word came back to me, and every officer with whom I have spoken about it since has assured me that he had felt exactly as I did. I walked under the trees till morning witnessing eight similar burials. This spot had evidently been se-lected by the men for their comrades on account of the palms, and if a pretty burial-ground is any comfort to the dead or to their friends, this they certainly have at

CALLING THE TURN On the Man at the Chicago"Call" Boar Bulldozing Buyers. CHICAGO, September 21 .- "There should be a rule," said a commission man to your correspondent this afternoon, "prohibiting the person who acts as 'caller' on the Call Board from trading in the market." The Brownsville, September 21.—River 6 feet speaker had been shouting himself hoarse 9 inches and stationary. Weather cloudy trying to buy some corn. He sat a little to left of the caller, pretty well in front, and opoly convention.

After the appointment of committees the left of the caller, pretty well in iront, and there was no good reason why he should not have attracted the attention of the official with the gavel.

"Is the 'caller' interested in the market? sked the writer.

asked the writer.

"Yes," was the reply. "He's a 'bear,' and he hates to see this stuff go up."

"Is it possible for the man in the caller's desk to influence the market?"

"It's the easiest thing in the world," he replied, "calling off an offer to sell without the property of the control of the call without the call of the call without the cal seeing a buyer, shutting down on option if the crowd is rushing it up, before the buyers are through; all these little tricks count for a great deal. Furthermore, these little crookednesses, like those practiced by the pitcher in a base ball game, are rather sins of omission than of commis-sion, and while they are effective, are hard Mixed Politics.

Selma, Alai, September 21.—The dissatisfied colored Republicans of the Fourth Congressional district requested George H. Craig, white, nominee of the regular convention, to resign in the interest of harmony, and nominated Merritt A. Howze, colored. John W. Jones, colored, was promininged by the regular convention for "What do you think of wheat?" higher figures as was taken in."
"What do you think of wheat?"

"McGeogh will advance September, as if the equinoctial gets here on time he will undoubtedly be able to squeeze his 'shorts.'"

"Do you think he is likely to drop his wheat before the end of the mouth?"

"No. He can't afford to do it. If he wants it at the market now, prices would break all to pieces, so that he would lose 7a8c per bushel, whereas he is not losing above 2c on his cash wheat now, and will make something out out of his shorts. He is besides an honest 'bull' on the property, and believes, and perhaps he is right, that the time is coming when he will get all his money back."

PHILADELPHIA, September 21.—In the Star route trials to day the judge expressed regret that the indictment was so voluminous. It was hard, he said, for the jury or the court to understand it without a great loss of time. United States District Attorney Valentine explained that he had drawn up the indictments, which he thought were sufficient, but when such eminent counsel were engaged in the Washington cases, he thought it best to follow their example.

As the Intelligencer intimated several days since, the name of the Scioto is to be changed before it runs again. As soon as the proper papers are secured from the Government, "Regular" will be painted on her paddle boxes. The craft has been repaired so that one would never dream that it had had the terrible experience that the Scioto did on the night of July 4. It is a fast boat and will not belie its new name, but will always be regular in its arrival and departures.
